Neighborhood Housing Services of Birmingham

Names Chief Executive Officer

Birmingham, AL, June 13, 2013 – Jack Green, an experienced senior executive in community service and community development, has been named the next Neighborhood Housing Services of Birmingham (NHSB) Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Green's experience in business, technology, community development, affordable housing and strategic analysis makes him the ideal candidate to guide this results-driven and high performing non-profit.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to serve Neighborhood Housing Services of Birmingham, a lead organization for NeighborWorks America – Southern District, and continue the success of providing excellent results in affordable housing development and community stabilization," said Green.

NeighborWorks America is a network of 240 high performing nonprofit and community development corporations created to improve homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families.

Most recently, Mr. Green has served as the Chief Outcomes Officer for the Community Action Partnership of North Alabama (Decatur, AL) where he was responsible for the management and development of programs and strategies that produced stability for vulnerable low-income families and communities. Green has also been a key leader in community recovery success in disaster stricken areas of North West Alabama.

"We are happy that Jack will join us as our next CEO as we continue our efforts to make this a desirable community for our residents. We have experienced remarkable growth in the last five years and it is our intent to continue that, with Jack at the helm," said Linda Allen, Board President.

NHSB is the leading non-profit provider of affordable housing and community development in the area, specializing in homeownership opportunities, financial education and financial literacy education for low- and moderate-income families.
